Bob and I have known each other since kindergarten. We always had a lot in ¹_____, like our taste in music, love for long hiking trips, and a similar sense of humour. Still, we never dated and I thought of him as of a good friend rather than my future ²_____. When I was in third grade, I had a total ³_____ on a guy from a neighbouring school. I remember that when a friend of mine introduced him to me at a party, I just went speechless and couldn't help ⁴_____ at him for the next few hours. It was love at first ⁵_____. We went out for over a year, but then we broke up ⁶_____ to a silly misunderstanding. There was some ⁷_____ about him and another girl. We had a really nasty row. Then it turned out that the girl was just a ⁸_____ friend, but he never forgave me for my lack of trust. I tried to apologise to him, but he remained firm in his decision. I was ⁹_____ and it was Bob who supported me through a difficult time. Time is a great ¹⁰_____ and I finally realised that the relationship wouldn't have lasted long anyway, as we were too different and didn't really match. And here I am, after many years, with Bob by my side and a(n) ¹¹_____ ring on my finger. And although ¹²_____ of us is perfect, and there will certainly be some ups and ¹³_____, I know the ¹⁴_____ we have can't be compared to any other relationship either of us had.
